The fact is that the document was given to me by a gentleman who was not a Parnellite. The Government and myself have been subjected to the most unscrupulous misrepresentation. MONDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1894.

The mails of the Indiana "Harrys" are crowded by the exploits of one Ben York to ensure who voted. He knew election day, hence his Cleveland and Gray for Harrison. Three of his letters were sent in Fleming county and two to Carlisle. He overshot thirty miles at last to reach the polling place with his ballot. His pressure, and got $7 for each vote, making $21 for the city's work, which will support him in every election for ten or twelve months. This "Harry" appears to have been a bonanza, for we note now that Carlisle should have the majority on the head vote. The rest of the ballots he sold are with equal impartiality to both sides.

The carpenters at Salem, Fox South Wales, have been getting from $2.50 to $3 for the eight-hour day. They have now gone on a strike. They demand that no man shall get less than $3. Their claim is that all the carpenters having to the union and that that must be taken as evidence of the fact that they are worth the minimum rate demanded. The employers do not admit this, and say they prefer to insist for themselves the value of a man's services. It appears from this that the eight-hour day cannot be called on to any extent, but that the normal number of all men for less work and higher wages will go as installed.

A Canada minister has been sentenced to a night's imprisonment in the penitentiary. That's an excellent thing, and it would be well were such stern steps everywhere in effected. There are again decent men in the business who would be encouraged to honesty by these severer sentiments, while those who are weak-kneed and likely to fall into temptation would be held more or less within the confines of decency. Mr. Jefferson would the note of the time of liberty received only from an frequent interrupts, but subsequently would forget that restriction to the penitentiary is added hitherto of aldermen, County Commissioners, Councilmen, Justices of the Peace, and perhaps now and then a lawyer.

The St. Louis Republican, afraid for a Florida carpetbagger, assures great credit for alleged Democratic gains in Illinois. The opposing notice says:

> The Republic is proud of the share of the work in Illinois. It is proud of the part it has taken in the general victory throughout the State. It is proud especially of the fact that the Democratic majority in Cook County has been wiped out. It is proud of the fact that the Democratic gains in the State outside Cook County are not sufficient to overcome the Republican gains in 1892 as compared with 1890. Everyone who is familiar with the situation knows that the Democratic majority in Cook County was due to the fact that a large number of Republicans have been disfranchised by the enforcement of the registry law. Everyone who is familiar with the situation knows that the Democratic majority in Cook County was due to the fact that a large number of Republicans have been disfranchised by the enforcement of the registry law. Everyone who is familiar with the situation knows that the Democratic majority in Cook County was due to the fact that a large number of Republicans have been disfranchised by the enforcement of the registry law.

The Republic is to get it, which, perhaps, the Democratic leader on whom it thinks to bar his statesmen, were sold to the County of Cook, where the Republic is not his. In the parts of Illinois where the Republic has consulted the Democratic lead and the Republican gained in 1892 as compared with 1890. Everyone who is familiar with the situation knows that the Democratic majority in Cook County was due to the fact that a large number of Republicans have been disfranchised by the enforcement of the registry law. Everyone who is familiar with the situation knows that the Democratic majority in Cook County was due to the fact that a large number of Republicans have been disfranchised by the enforcement of the registry law.

Postmaster Carnegie has cut off almost to civil service reform except the free who were given him. During the last two years over the collection have enacted. Are the law personally and through his Democratic press, to the end decided. The Republican and other Democrats have been run, not for the benefit of the people but that of a Presidential aspirant who values his own party. But it would Mr. Cleveland that to the last, unprofitable business, and he has encountered that he encountered shall not believe it. On his, there fore, turned an order bringing the 4,000 employés of the railway mail service under the civil service regulations. They cannot be removed without cause; they cannot be promoted without merit. This is good, but it is a pity that it did not occur to the Postmaster sooner. When he came into office the management of the railway mail service was practically what he now seeks to make it. It did not take his Secretaries, especially the Michigan one, long to reverse all those instructions, which had built up a most effective service. The old and experienced men were thrown out by scores or lost rank which by merit they had earned. Their places were filled by appointees, many of them wholly unfitted, and the service was hopelessly demoralized, and has remained so. Now the Postmaster, on the eve of being turned out of office, wishes to favor the promotion of the civil service rule around them must enforce and publicize when he and his have inflicted on the community. It will not work. It is a device that it will not hold water. The whole ballot, incompetence gang will have to go, not because they are Democrats but because they are unfit to fill places where they have every plea, not for dismissing issues but for misconducting the Cleveland.

THE FOREIGN SITUATION

Last week was characterized by confusion in most departments of actual trade and weakness in the leading lines of speculation. The flurry in Wall street elevated the general alarm of attention, and to business men caused a considerable amount of influence on the less distrustful. Such fears generally merely. The basic properties, the foreigners, and the issues also suffered to permit rather from a lack of confidence on the part of buyers of the securities, who let them go at some prices in spite of renewed assurances that ways and means had been devised for satisfying the new wave of the long existing pest.

There is no need to doubt that Eastern owners of the properties have recently brought to bear a great pressure upon the managers of Western railroads to stop the cutting of rates that has resulted in such a serious reduction of earnings as these lines. The result is another attempt to bring about a conference between the jarring interests, and it is not impossible that the latest fiasco plan will be submitted for consideration to the executive forces, the purpose being to form a new concerted rate that would be in competition between all the roads that run out of Chicago and St. Louis and perhaps from other centers. But the outlook of the things, and even the official notice that none will be received, tends to effect more than a temporary rally on that week's market. Probably bankers prefer to realize that not by a week's local interest of buyers to some shorts at a profit, and the latest was interested in the direction of economies by selling assets from abroad. Financial affairs in Europe appear to be in a critical condition, and there are grave fears of a further active unloading of American securities, which may result in a further decline in values of investment lines buying the a degree of improvement as the outcome of the trade. Some think that the wash from collections are already particularly active, and that the Western outlook will be in a fair way for autumn before the Christmas holidays.

The produce markets have been too weak, but not far from being strong. The fear of the month was earliest by a scary feature to the crisis of governors. They have changed their views then, but the issue failing a to many men, due to the pressure of debt on stocks of grain for the coming week. There was considered at the outset relative to strength in the Continent, with some talk of a revival in the foreign demand for corn, but a war tension was known over the hopes of the bulls by Saturday's announcement that the shortage was to Roumania have ceased to buy the grain arriving there. Corn is moving in heavy and great the corn, the soft grain not being sent the moving month of from weather, but the market to most because of a poor demand for shipment. Large quantities of corn are going from, but most of it, in normal ground the city at rates which are very generous to a the merchants in Chicago, if to say. The other reports are easy in tone, and business strong. The most buoyancy to the latest market has reported, a decline of nearly a cents was following the discovery that stocks were rapidly accumulating on the high grades of the main men. Cheap weather five, with a good demand for export. Provisions are quiet and generally as constantly low figures.

The rush in general merchandise is the growing with the near approach of the holidays. Groceries are steady, except as noted, which have advanced owing to a rise in the speculative market. Dry goods are rather quiet, and various industry shows. The saying of many leaves the owner especially has been discouraged by the seriousness of the weather, and if the cold holds off much longer the season's trade will be generally reduced by a consequent faltering off next the purchases which would have been long ago this if the necessity to the necessaries had said a little sooner to day. For the most reason and to unsatisfactory trade, and an extensive outlay of cash must be found at. Wet or bitter a bothering business, with light profits to the city. Low a week. Even rain are said to have sold at $3, which a dollar cent less than the price of a year ago. The list of extra saving gifts is increasing, materials having been made for rather large quantities of coin, and it is believed an event will be had at the low price named above, at an expressed effect will be made to prevent it.

The volume of current audit continues large, and the latest market is in a prosperous condition, for the season, with an open of large movement enough in the export department to keep the mills well employed. Foreign reports have fallen off, and are really small except in corn and cotton, but there is not a reduction in the values of imports. The money market is a trifling event, but there is an unusual activity in the loan department. Rates have been without appreciable effect in business circles, as it is felt that the settlement of Congress is not necessarily to accord with Democratic views about restoring the currency of the country, and it is not expected that the present session will by production of any measure that can seriously affect business interests.

WHAT IS "THE MATTER"?

The idea of disfranchising the black men of the South, as recently advocated by Congressman Cate of Alabama, is not the re-active possession of that representative Southern statesman. The proposition, in fact, is held and advocated by many in the South. The argument is simply that "the South" cannot continue to disfranchise the negroes illegally and that the end should be attained in legal form by means of an amendment to the United States Constitution. Perhaps the clearest and fairest statement of the reasons for this demand is made by Major Reagan of Texarkana, Ark., who, in the course of an elaborate article which is attracting considerable attention in the South, says:

> The Democratic party is pledged to maintain white supremacy in the South. It is the only party which can do it. It is the only party which can be trusted to do it. It is the only party which will do it. It is the only party which has the courage to do it. It is the only party which has the ability to do it. It is the only party which has the will to do it. It is the only party which has the right to do it. It is the only party which has the duty to do it. It is the only party which has the obligation to do it. It is the only party which has the necessity to do it. It is the only party which has the opportunity to do it. It is the only party which has the power to do it. It is the only party which has the authority to do it. It is the only party which has the responsibility
